interesting collection, ex-J.J.Danielski (*on 20-21 June, 1940, Polish soldiers in France made their escape through various border villages and crossed into Switzerland as German tanks overran the remains of the Franco-Polish defenses. At the border, Polish soldiers abandoned their arms and became interned under the control and protection of General Henri Guisan. About 12,000 men had escaped, which in doing so placed Switzerland in a precarious position with Nazi occupied Europe.
To minimize political and diplomatic tension with Germany, the Commissaire Federal a l'internment et hospitalization decided to construct a mass internment camp at Haftli near Buren in the Canton of Solothurn to partially contain 6,000 Poles and remove local tensions as the Swiss men were away from home defending their border. With the war over, the first convoy of interned soldiers left Swiss soil on 22nd November 1945 with the assistance of the Red Cross. Only 2,000 returned to
